Sluggish Trading of Corn.

The corn market was a decidedly disappointing ad insignificant affair. Dealings were extremely light and fluctuations slow. Temporarily there was rather more firmness, owing to reports that the crop was backward and weedy, mainly because of the excessive rains and resultant floods. Afterwards there was rather more pressure, largely attributed to clear and warmer weather West. There are many traders who feel that corn cannot decline materially in the near future, because the visible and invisible supply is believed to be about the smallest on record.

THE STOCK MARKET OF THE WEEK

NEW YORK, June 28.—Grain markets early in the week were extremely irregular, the only noteworthy feature being the the fact that nearby deliveries displayed weakness, while just the reverse was true of the September. This was due to an almost universal desire on the part of speculators in all markets to sell the July and Buy September. bringing about, of course, a rapid narrowing of the difference between the two, and leading to predictions that in winter wheat markets at least the difference would soon be in favor of the September. The opinion was that a great many traders had been missiled by the stories of brilliant crop promise and that the selling of September. Cotton Market.

The principal feature of the trading in the cotton markets the past week has been the liquidation of speculation of permit a revival of the recent talk for permit a revival of the recen and August of the old crop deliveries.

Spot markets in the South, which have heretofore been regarded as the bulwark to sustained high prices, have also been gradually weakening during the past week. No great pressure of offerings has been reported, but prices have slumped largely in sympathy with the sharp decline in futures during the week, and the continuance of almost perfect weather for the rapid progress of the new crop, causing many holders to offer their cotton. As a result prices at the principal interior and seahoard receiving points are new down to the 111-4@111-2 basis again for middling cetton for immediate delivery.

The appearance of a larger number STOCK BROKERS.

The appearance of a larger number of new bales in Southern Texas much earlier than had been expected, is leading to the belief that the movement of new cotton from that section will start much sooner and in larger volume than was thought could possibly be the case up to a fortnight ago. This is giving color to recent reports month's government report estimated the condition as 79.7 to the average date of May 25th, against 70.5 last year, 84.6 in 1906, and 82.3 the ten-year aver-age for that period.

Counteracting factor to this financial inufience was the evidence of clail inufience was the evidence of the avy liquidation in the Rock Island securities and the wide declines in prices in that group. Fears were thus aroused that some unrevealed embarrassment confronted the company of the admittedly cumbersome financial of the some undisclosed plan of readjustment of the granization of the system. The Southwestern railroads, made vulnerable by sympathy with this Rock Island movement, were sensitive also to the suggestion of crop damage both to winter wheat and to corn in that region. Some impairment of the promised wheat yield has come to be admitted, but general confidence in unprejudiced chances for a prosperous crop, altitude the general water of the iron and steel outlook, owing to large contracts for steel bars. In that field too, opinions were mixed, and demand for finished product in response to the cut in prices is reported the Republic Iron and Steel company, and its employes was regarded with some apprehension as a possible prospect of the fallow of the railroad field come intimation of the problems of wage disputes to be faced.

Money Abundant.

Money supplies are superabundant and cash reserves at the great banking centres of the world are at an unprecedented level. This is a natural result of the great contraction of circulation from industrial depression. The gold outgo from New York has ceased with the satisfaction of the Berlin requirement for the January 1st settlements. Extra July 1st requirements in prospect at New York had not the slightest disturbing effect in the tranquility of the money market.
